12:11 Spectrum: Armageddon

Neil Silverwood is a man with a dream. This keen caver is searching for the link between the West Coast's Fox River cave systems and an ominously-named nearby cave called Armageddon, to create one of the longest subterranean networks in New Zealand. Recently Neil and a team of cavers travelled to Armageddon to have a go. Over four long days, they struggled through tight passages, under low-hanging rock and freezing cave streams to try to find the connection. And they took an RNZ recording device with them. Spectrum goes underground to try to find a way in the darkness.

12:37 Standing Room Only

4:06 The Sunday Feature - Black Lives Matter: The Story of a Slogan

The BBC's Mukul Devichand traces the growth of the online campaign that has revitalised the US civil rights movement. The slogan was coined in 2013, shortly after a jury acquitted a Florida neighbourhood watch volunteer of the murder of black teenager. But it was the events in Ferguson, Missouri, following the shooting of an 18-year-old black youth which turned those words into a worldwide rallying cry. (BBC)
